

Dear Holistic Health Care Providers:

I wanted to get this invitation flyer to you for the AHNA Philadelphia Area Network's first fall meeting. The meeting will be held on Monday, September 13, 2010 at Ryah Yoga and Health (see attached flyer for details). This invite is going to all current, new, and perspective area members. Please feel free to share with co-workers.

The first meeting will be a networking gathering where we will discuss how the network can provide support and education for Holistic Health Providers of the Philadelphia Area. The AHNA is a non-profit organization whose mission is to foster a vital community that advances holistic healthcare and nursing.

The AHNA Philadelphia Area Network works to provide self-care education and networking support for all those who attend. The network has also identified two outreach projects. The international project involves a mission trip to South Africa (please see mission trip proposal on network web page at www.innerlightrecovery.com). The other outreach project involves offering support and education about holistic self-care and nursing to nursing students of the Philadelphia Area. Furthermore, I have spoken with the AHNA education director about providing a CNE event this year.

This is the last meeting that will be held at Ryah Yoga and Health. Our meeting location will be floating this fall/winter which will allow for even greater networking. The goal is to keep the location and parking easily accessible. AHNA network member, Barbara Abramek, has helped arrange for The Dixon School of Nursing to host several meetings and, additionally, AHNA network member, Barbara Notte, has arranged for Bryn Mawr Hospital to host two meetings. A big thank you goes out to them for their help. If you are interested in hosting a meeting please contact me ASAP with a possible location.

I am looking forward towards your participation in fostering the Philadelphia Area Holistic Healthcare Community. The network strives to be a healing place that advances holistic healthcare for you and the Philadelphia nursing community.

Sincerely,

Margaret Brown
